Biosecurity Information for International Delegates

APSA welcomes delegates from all countries. In light of the changing distribution of African Swine Fever (ASF) in Asia and parts of Europe, we encourage anyone travelling to Australia to attend the 18th Biennial APSA Conference to observe the Australian Government's information on keeping ASF out of Australia.

"ASF is a highly contagious viral disease of domestic and wild pigs. ASF has never occurred in Australia. Its changing distribution means it's a significant biosecurity threat to our country. An outbreak would be devastating for our pig production and health. It would also damage our trade and the economy." Department of Agriculture

"You must declare on your Incoming Passenger Card (IPC) if you have visited a rural area or been in contact with, or near, farm animals in the past 30 days." Department of Agriculture
